

In light of the FCC's report on the LightSquared testing with the GPS interference, further deployment of this system should NOT be allowed. Any potential disruption of GPS signals would adversely affect the surveying, mapping and remote sensing professions, of which Aerial Services is a part. We rely almost daily on this technology for our business. We urge a rejection of the FCC approval of the LightSquared application until no interference of these signals has been demonstrated.